BOOTMAKING FORGOTTEN ART

Nowadays it is a rarity to see a man wearing a pair of work boots and dress boots would be regarded in the nature of a curiosity almost anywhere in Kentucky.

It used to be that every small town boasted expert boot and shoemakers, but these have given way to the cobbler and repair shop. The dandy of thirty years ago required a pair of dress boots in his sartorial makeup and ordinarily he did not have to go away from the home town to have them made. Now the expert boot and shoe craftsman has retired, gone into something else, or is engaged in half-soling or mending shoes, and an honorable trade has become obsolete for lack of apprentices.

What custom and fashion have done for the bootmaker, the automobile has done for the saddler and carriage maker. These ancient trades are no longer taught or learned in this State. In the opinion of veteran craftsmen these trades are destined to become lost arts and go the way of other ancient, forgotten callings.

The erstwhile sporty youth that drove a smartly-harnessed horse, attached to a custom-made buggy, now goes in for a flivver and wonders how his forbears got along with such an antiquated equipage. It seems agreed that the motor vehicle has done more than anything else to break down the customs of the good old days."

SOUTHERN BREEDERS ASSOCIATION NOVEMBER 3.

The Kentucky Shorthorn Breeders Association annual show and sale of high class registered Shorthorn cattle will be held Friday, November 3, at Tattersall's sale barn on South Broadway, in Lexington. The breeders contribution to this sale have selected top animals from their herds to make this the best lot of Shorthorn cattle ever offered at public sale in Kentucky. Individually the cattle offered are far above the average sale offering and their breeding is as good as can be found in America. Many good livestock farmers in Kentucky have been waiting for an opportune time to get started in the Shorthorn business and it appears that anyone interested in buying one or a few head of registered Shorthorns could find just what he wants at this sale and buy it in at his own valuation. While the breeders making their sale have selected top animals from their herds they are not expecting high prices. When farmers can buy high class purebreds for little more than beef prices it seems to be good business to produce the purebreds because they are much more profitable.

BOURBON FARMING CONDITIONS.

Bourbon county farmers have put in some busy days husking and housing their corn crops. Perfect fall weather has aided them greatly in this work. The drought that has prevailed has caused the grain to mature and cure in excellent condition. The yield will be considerably shorter than that of last year.

Tobacco has cured up in fine shape, and as soon as a good rain comes stripping of the weed will commence. A small amount of stripping has already been done. Farmers outside the Burley pool will have until November 6th to sign contracts placing their crops in care of the Association for handling.

Sowing of fall grain has been completed. Most of the rye, wheat and barley is faring well, but a good soaking rain would help matters very materially.

USERS OF ADDING MACHINES

For your convenience we are now carrying a stock of the best adding machine rolls and can supply you with one or a dozen at a time. This is a fine linen bond paper and absolutely lintless.

THE BOURBON NEWS,

O, RIGHTEOUS JUDGE! O, JUST JUDGE!

There was a dispute in Judge William Alexander's court, in Cincinnati the other morning as to whether some whisky seized at the home of Mrs. Fannie Litz was illicit or the "real stuff." The judge tasted it and decided that it was the "best whisky he had sampled for a long time." He ordered the case dismissed and the whisky returned to the woman.

According to one scientist, our arms and legs will gradually disappear from our bodies, though he estimates this calamity as not occurring for at least 10,000 years. Meanwhile, we do not have to worry.
